Republican State Convention. On Thursday of last week, the republicans of Michigan met in state convention in the opera house and put in nom-ination a state ticket which will be elected in November. The delegates commenced to arrive on Wednesday noon, but the evening trains brought the largest numbers, and the Lansing house until midnight presented a lively appearance. The friends of the various candidates were earliest upon the ground, leaking after the largest number of men, without a dissenting voice. Sylvester Larned of Detroit and Judge Miller of Bay were appointed a look; J. L. Frisbie, 48; N. L. Miller, 9; J. B. F. Partridge, 134; J. M. Neasmith, 106; J. L. Frisbie, 48; N. L. Miller, 9; L. B. The candidates should be not only men of purity of purpose and intelligence, but above all, true to the noble principles of the republican party. Some must be disappointed in not having their favorites chosen, but there is a demand upon every patriot in this country to sink all personal preferences and join the grand phalanx in winning a victory under the leaders who would be nominated by a majority of this convennominated by a majority of this conven-

Ingham county delegation believed there was a better chance for Mr. Cahill's nomination, and so Mr. Potter's name was not presented to the convention. For lieutenant governor there was much close work done by the friends of Alonzo Sessions of Ionia and of W. R. Bates of East Saginaw.

The two prominent men mentioned for superintendent of public instruction were H. S. Tarbell of East Saginaw.

Chairman S. D. Bingham and S. S. Olds had their hands full in arranging for the convention, but nothing was left undone that would systematize business and add to the comfort of delegates and members of the press.

The convention was called to order at noon by Mr. Bingham, who read the call convening the convention, and after alluding briefly to the glorious prospect in the state for a republican victory this fall, he nominated W. J. Baxter of Jonesville for temporary chairman, which was accepted with great applause.

Mr. Baxter, on taking the chair, spoke briefly and appropriately.
